Valley's oldest resident raises Farm Center flag

An old-fashioned Flag Pole raising initiated the week in Carmel Valley. A magnificent 35 foot aluminum flag pole topped by a bright brass-colored sphere was put in place adjacent to the Farm Center Store by owners Pauline and Pat Herman, assisted by a crew from Pacific Telephone Company.

Perry McDonald, 97 year old Valleyite and the first visitor at the Farm Center store did the honors of raising the five by eight foot flag on the new pole. Perry walked in the door 20 years ago and has been a regular customer ever since. Other oldtimers Allen Jacks and Roy Meadows assisted in the ceremony.

Mr. Meadows recalled attending what he thinks was the first flag raising in the Valley in 1892 at the original Carmelo School. His father went up Robinson Canyon and cut down the tall redwood tree that was used to make the pole.

Arnot and Schacher debate school override tax at Carmel Valley Kiwanis club lunch

"Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers' Association is for the good education that the proponents of the school tax override are," President Harold Arnot of the Association told Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club last week, "but our approach is different." He emphasized that group opposes accelerated property taxation adding that the school tax vote Tuesday would up the school rate 25%.

Gordon Schacher, a physicist professor at the Navy Postgraduate School, speaking for the proponents of the tax override, pointed out that the quality of new teachers to be hired will depend on approval of the tax override.

Without the override, the School District will face a deficit of $120,000 this coming year Schacher said. Teacher turnover for 1964-65 was 22%, he said; experienced teachers are mostly those leaving.

Arnot charged that Carmel Unified School District now has the most expensive education per student on the Monterey Peninsula. With cost per student in 1964-65 at $681.91, this year it will reach $769.37, he said State Department of Education figures show.

In this one-year period, administrative costs have increased 27%, cost of principals 20% and teacher costs 7.5%, Arnot said. Students have increased 448 since 1960, he said, while the District's revenue from property taxes went up $700,000 or $1,562.50 per new student.

Schacher said that failure of Questions from the audience regarding the proposed override tax for the Carmel Schools were answered by members of the Citizens Committee for Better Schools at Monday evening's meeting of Carmel High School parents and teachers. Pertinent statements included these:

"What assurance have the voters that the money will be used as promised?"

The integrity of the Board of Education throughout past years is the guarantee. Carmel's board is elected by and responsible to the public. Its present members have considered themselves bound by the commitment of past boards to a general reserve fund and to the Instructional Materials Center. All Board meetings are open to the public and the press, and people who take the trouble to attend them find all decisions duly considered and openly arrived at.

"If there are 139 teachers and 2827 pupils in the District, this yields a pupil-teaching ratio of 1-23. Isn't this low enough? Why are more teachers needed?"

The 139 figure includes special teachers in music, art, speech therapy, as well as all counselors and librarians. None of these have regular classes, so the basic class size is larger than 23. Furthermore, students at the Middle School have eight periods of instruction a day, but each teacher teaches only six. Some classes run as large as 35 or 36; the average is around 28. This is still too big for adequate individual attention, especially in the early grades. A teacher with 28 six-year-olds in class can do very

State Supreme Court upholds Upper Valley school bus

The Carmel Unified School District will be required to continue bus service to children of the Robert Manjares family living in the Paloma Creek area of the Upper Carmel Valley, according to a decision handed down last Friday by the California Supreme Court. The original action was filed by two families living in that area, but the Wallace's have recently moved to the Schulte Road section of the Valley. The seven children involved in the bus run are all members of the Robert Manjares family.

The ruling states that the children must be picked up at the nearest bus stop to their home, which is actually two miles distant.

Four trips a day are necessary to transport the children, with two drivers and two vehicles involved in the transportation schedule. If the ruling had required the family to bring the children to the Hasting Reservation, which the CUSD hoped would occur, only one driver and one bus would be needed.

The run to the Manjares bus stop is 19 miles and the route through Cachagua is also approximately 19 miles. Tom McKiernon leaves on his first trip to the Manjares stop at 5:20 a.m. daily. He gets back to the Village about 7 a.m. in time for these youngsters to catch the high school bus. He leaves immediately thereafter on the Cachagua run for Tularcitos school children.

A similar switching action goes on in the afternoon as grade school and high school students are bussed out the Valley. There are five children who are eligible for the high school run and two who go on the grade school run.

The Supreme Court ruling upheld the original decision handed down in 1964 by the Superior Court in Monterey, Judge Anthony Brazil presiding.

vide bus service to the Robert Manjares family 19 miles out the Valley.

The District Court of Appeals reversed this action in 1965.

The Marion Wallace and Robert Manjares family then appealed the decision through Carmel attorney Francis Heisler. The CUSD was required to restore service to the outlying area this term, pending the appeal.

The school district estimates that this service alone costs approximately $3,000 per year.

Outlook Supports Override Tax

Decisions often depend where you stand. If you stand behind children of your own in school, you not only espouse good schools; you foot the bills with a smile.

If your interests are elsewhere, you may not appreciate the thought of school cost. You may not have taken the time to determine just how critical are the needs of the Carmel District schools.

They are critical, a study of the facts indicates, if it is important to maintain current standards. Carmel Unified School District will be in trouble if the 70¢ override tax does not pass next Tuesday.

For the quality of education being provided, the local school system is not extravagant. Residents of the Carmel area have long demanded a first-class education for their children, and the board of education has fulfilled this requirement.

A fine school system is more than doing right by the future generation. It's also a tangible investment in the real values wanted by the community.

Unfair Comparison Of Districts

There are many facets to the current campaigns for and against the school override tax. The opposition continually compares the Carmel district to Pacific Grove School District with comparison figures of cost per child. A fact that has not been mentioned by the opponents is that the Carmel School District encompasses 594 square miles compared to the PG district of 4.5 square miles. Increased transportation cost alone would make a considerable difference and eliminate logical comparison.

There are many small schools in the Carmel District, because of its extensive area. Any three of these lumped together would compose one average school in another district.

The Administration Building Matter

Opponents of the override tax continually refer to "the fancy new administration building," that "Taj Mahal" at Middle School, pense.

Facts show that the new building has nothing whatsoever to do with the School District budget as affected by the override tax.

When Sunset School was sold to the City of Carmel, valuable space was lost to the CUSD. The Board of Education voted to allocate the funds from the sale to replace the facilities lost by the transfer.

This involved 12 classrooms, three rooms used for instructional materials and space for the District Central office which is presently housed in two tiny temporary buildings near Woods School. Plans had called for the offices to move into remodeled facilities at Sunset.

The estimate given at the time to renovate Sunset facilities for use by the Central office was in excess of $100,000. The new Central Office and Instructional Materials Center at Carmel Middle School is being built at a cost of $172,000 which is being financed TOTALLY from the monies ($550,000) received in the sale of Sunset School. (In addition, classrooms, lecture hall, library facilities and science rooms are coming from this fund.)

The money from the override is needed for maintenance, and improvement, of the educational level of the Carmel Unified School District...not for "Taj Mahals!"

High school tax meeting

little more than keep order. "How much do you figure this override will add to each taxpayer's bill?"

On the average, about $3 a month—the price of a dinner for one, a movie for two, or two cartons or cigarettes.

"If the override is passed, what is the outlook for five years from now when it expires?"

No one can project. It is anticipated that as the district moves farther and farther from the small population base of ten years ago, the cost per pupil will go down. It doesn't cost any more to advertise and go through the clerical motions accepting a bid for 1000 reams of paper or 3000 books than it does for 50. The Board certainly isn't going to wait until the end of five years to begin considering what to do past that point, but it is too early to do it now.

"It is rumored that if this override doesn't go through, the superintendent will resign."

The superintendent himself has said, quote, "This is completely false. I was hired to operate the Carmel Schools in the best way I could, and I will operate with ten cents, a thousand dollars, or a billion dollars. In this election the people are determining the quality of education they want in this district, and they have the right to determine that. I will continue to do the best job I can within the limits they set for me." Unquote. There is absolutely no connection between the superintendent's tenure and the override tax. He has a four-year contract that doesn't expire until June, 1969. If he were to resign, he would have to be replaced, and if you are implying that he is not adequate, it would take more money to hire someone who could do a better job.

CV Lions attend annual Student Speakers Contest

30 Valleyites of the Carmel Valley Lions Club and the auxiliary Lionettes attended a Student Speakers Contest at the USO in Monterey last Thursday night.

Fabian DuFoe, a student at Seaside High School, won the contest with a provocative speech on "Law and Liberty." Students Don Stillwell, from Robert Louis Stevenson School; Tom Stutzman, Monterey High; and David Mahurin, Pacific Grove High, all won second place awards, and each were sponsored by different Lions Clubs on the Peninsula.

LET'S BE REALISTIC GOOD EDUCATION COSTS MONEY

FACT: The Carmel Unified School District has had no tax increase in 8 years (Three years ago you voted to continue an override tax that you approved five years earlier). The new 70¢ override will take care of the next five years. If these two factors are considered, it means a raise of less than 2% per year less than the loss of purchasing power through inflation in this period.

FACT: After months of study, The Citizens Committee on Finance voted 8 in favor of a 77¢ override, 1 opposed and 2 abstained. Some in the citizens' group felt an even higher tax was needed. The school Board of Trustees later recommended 70¢.

FACT: A member of the Taxpayers' Association attended one of the Citizens' Finance Committee meetings months ago. Long ago all of the budget figures were available to this representative.

FACT: The Taxpayers' Association, although violently opposed to increased property taxes per se, has not submitted any alternative plan for our schools to the people. At a recent public meeting, their representative refused to give alternative plans to the voters.

FACT: Rural lands in Monterey County are being assessed the least of all real property tax categories. Residential property in our district does not pay its way on a tax revenue basis for City or County services. The Carmel School District is primarily a residential community. 74% of the School's income is derived from local property taxes. The disparity between tax collections and services required will continue to grow, not diminish.

FACT: We are having a special election because historically, teachers are employed during Easter vacation. The best are hired throughout the country at this time. Our school district cannot hire competitively without knowing whether funds are available.

FACT: The Carmel School District is half the size of Rhode Island and is burdened by high transportation costs. Cost comparisons of average daily attendance (ADA) with other districts is meaningless without recognizing the physical problems of a school district that covers nearly 600 square miles. Because we cannot consolidate our schools within a small area, higher operating expenses are involved.

FACT: The opposition has continually mentioned costs per student without once referring to the quality of education. The one thing that means quality education is being able to retain and obtain good teachers. Over 2/3rds of your school taxes will go for instruction.

FACT: Real property taxes are burdensome. They will continue to be unless other means of providing revenue are found. In the meanwhile our school system has no other choice but to rely on this method of meeting necessary expenditures.

FACT: Our children and our neighbor's children deserve the best in educational opportunity provided their requests are reasonable and needed. We sincerely believe they are.

Local hobbyists invited to enter antique model plane contest

Model airplane builders and hobbyists will have a chance to demonstrate skill in a contest to be held at the Steinbeck Theatre next month. The contest is being sponsored by Toy Town and Space Age Hobby Shops in conjunction with the showing of the motion picture "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines."

Contestants will be required to build a VINTAGE model plane covering the period 1903 to 1918. Materials and plans may be of their own design, or they can use prepared kits that are available at either of the shops. First prize for best construction, design, decorating and originality will be a new Barracuda bicycle. Second prize is a Cox Gas Race Car-GT Ford. Third prize, a transistor radio.

Entries for the contest must be ready for judging at the Steinbeck Theatre on Saturday, April 9, at 12 noon. Judges will be Col. Jim Anderson, U.S.A.F. Ret. and Tom Peck of Monarch Aviation.

The Vintage Model Plane contest has been inspired by the theme of the motion picture "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines," which deals with the pioneering days of flying, and the great race across the English Channel from London to Paris in 1910. In the film, exactly duplicated to the most minute detail, are such antique aircraft oddities as the Demoiselle, Antoinette, Bristol Box-Kite, Avro Triplane, Bleriot of the type which was the first plane to fly the English Channel. A model of any of the above planes would make a suitable entry in the contest.

Additional information may be acquired at Toy Town, Space Age Hobby Shop, or the Steinbeck Theatre.

Carmel High student council makes statement concerning override tax election

The Student Council of Carmel High School has been watching the campaign for the approval of the seventy cent override tax. We would now like to tell the citizens of Carmel School District why the override tax is a virtual necessity to students, as well as to teachers, building maintenance, and the administration.

Carmel High School has long been noted for its high academic standards. We are proud of the large percentage of our student body who are honor students. But in the last few years we have found ourselves cramped in our pursuit of knowledge by out-dated texts, limited research material, and overcrowded classrooms. In the last two years, we have seen an excellent faculty dwindle and change because of the low salary which does not match the high cost of living in this area.

Another major concern is that if the override tax is not passed, the administration will be forced to cut drastically classes and activities in the already limited departments of art, music, and athletics. In the past, Carmel High School has graduated well-rounded, responsible students. Part of their success has been academic. The other part has been their appreciative awareness of the magnificent country in which we live, its masterpieces of artistic creation, and most importantly, the sportsmanship and respect for our fellow man on and off the playing field.

This has been our heritage of learning. It is one unequaled by any other school in the area. But unless the override tax is passed, Carmel High School cannot continue to provide this

CV Garden Club plans program for show entrants

The Carmel Valley Garden Association will meet April 1 at 8 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School.

With the May 14 date for the Flower and Garden show in mind, a timely program has been planned with an invitation extended to the public to brush up on pointers of flower arrangements. Mrs. Adam Matuszek of Salinas will explain and demonstrate the "do's and don't's" which judges look for in show arrangements.

She will have in mind ideas to tie in with categories of the Valley show and advice in particular aimed at the Men's division.

Mrs. Matuszek is self trained in her art of arrangements and for 25 years has been a blue ribbon winner at the Monterey County Fair and Flower shows of the area. This year she will be in charge of the Flower Show at the Fair which will be from August 10-14.

fine educational program to a student body which is increasing by leaps and bounds while its faculty diminishes and its equipment becomes outdated.

We are concerned not only for ourselves but for the thousands of other students who will follow. We need new text books now, and adequate faculty now, and most importantly, we need to know that the citizens of Carmel and Carmel Valley are willing to help build and insure a strong and responsible America.

TOM O. PRESCOTT

Tom O. Prescott, a resident of Aliso Road since 1957, died last week at Stanford Medical Center. He is survived by his wife, Ruby.

Tom was born in Hungary and educated in Vienna. Since living in the Valley he had been the district agent for Mutual of Omaha and was due to receive a commendation or outstanding service.

Although Tom had been ill for a number of weeks, friends were shocked to hear of his death as he had recovered from previous severe complications.

No services were held since Tom asked that his body be donated to the Medical Center for research. Friends wishing to make contributions in his memory may send them to the hematology department of Stanford Medical Center.

MRS. IRVING OLLASON, and friend, invite guests to the "Lavendar and Old Lace A-Go-Go" fashion show and luncheon being held Wednesday, March 30, at Fellowship Hall of the Community Chapel. New fashions will also be shown at the annual event and delicious salads will be the feature of the menu. Luncheon will be served at 12:30. Check for reservations because it is always a sell-out! The Rhyming Philosopher

How often I've heard some young person complain
There aren't enough hours in the day
To reach those objectives they hope to attain
And not interfere with their play.
But the weeks and the months and the years slither by,
And scarcely accomplish a thing,
While yesterday's dream they discard, with an eye
On something tomorrow may bring.
Certain scientists state that a man can expect
To double his normal life's span
With health and the function to still walk erect
And do all the things that we plan.
But I entertain doubts that it's time that we need
So much as the will to begin;
For it isn't the drive and it isn't the speed
That gives us incentive to win.
And it isn't the year or the month or the day,
Nor all of the time up ahead,
But it's those precious minutes we fritter away,
We could use for profit instead.
And the older we grow the more surely we know
That time asks no questions, but How?
So forget about yesterday—get up and go—
For time isn't future, it's NOW!

Kite enthusiasts are busy warming up for festival

MARCIA ELWOOD OF CARMEL brushes up on her kite flying technique as she sends a box kite aloft over Bob Walthour sailing in the Thistle at Carmel River lagoon. Don't forget the Carmel Kite Festival Saturday afternoon at Carmel Middle School. The time is 1:30. All kites must be home made and they MUST fly to be eligible for prizes. (See pages 10 and 11 for more pictures and story.)

This new Carmel chimney needs ivy growing over it, or perhaps a Virginia Creeper to turn red in the Fall, or a bougainvilleae.

And this picturesque house needs a loving family to make it into a home. Its friendly English styling, its massive fireplace, big dining room, breakfast room, wonderful kitchen, three bedrooms (with casement windows), 2 1/2 baths, carpeting throughout-----every part of it just crying for a family to enjoy.

And so close to the Carmel schools, and in such a sunny location, and you could have possession right away. In plenty of time to get the vine planted on the chimney yet this spring!

Under the Oaks and Among the Cacti

By Mildred Hattan

The family of Mr. Don McKenzie Sr. spent the day at Big Sur Sunday celebrating his 88 birthday. Mr. McKenzie, who with his wife, Frieda, makes his home on Esquiline Road in Robles del Rio, is a native of England. He came to this country when he was 17. He ranched at Watsonville, helped to run a tuberculosis sanitarium at Jolon, and like most residents of that era worked for a time at the fashionable Del Monte Hotel. The Valley has been his home for thirty one years. Following the traditional annual baseball game on Sunday there was a picnic dinner including steaks, artichokes and a huge birthday cake. Mr. McKenzie had help blowing out the 88 candles from his grandson, Scott, who was celebrating his eighth birthday. Scott's parents had planned a party earlier in the week for him at Dennis the Menace Park. Attending Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Don McKenzie Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Don McKenzie Jr. with Stewart, Sally, and Scott, Mr. and Mrs. David Hoover, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McKenzie, David and Diane, Mrs. Evelyn Ammerman, Mrs. Elsie Crow, Helyn Crow, Dona McKenzie, Mrs. Robert Staples and her children Debbie, Robert, Donna Sue, and Dee Ann.

Valley residents last weekend at Heavenly Valley for one last holiday in the snow were the Lee family from Laurel Drive, Richard, Thelma, Jeff, and Sandra.

Valley representatives played such important roles in making Princess Margaret welcome on her recent trip to the Valley and Valley residents once again greeted British royalty when Mr. and Mrs. Palmer T. Beaudette left their home with its spectacular view of the Farm Center and Robinson Canyon to attend a dinner honoring Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh at Palm Springs and a dinner for him the following night in Beverly Hills. Mrs. Beaudette will be remembered as the former Cobina Wright Jr. of the 1940 motion picture era.

Peninsula Medical Assistants held a dinner party and installation of officers Wednesday night at the Villa Caruso. Attending from Carmel Valley were Dr. and Mrs. Arlo Pitcher, Dr. and Mrs. C. Winter Van Horn, Marta Fulgham, and Art McMillan.

Local artists invited to submit works to Kingsley Art Club show

The 41st Annual Exhibition of the Kingsley Art Club, the oldest art club in Northern California, will be held at the E.B. Crocker Art Gallery in Sacramento from May 19 through June 26. The exhibition is open to residents of Northern California. There is no entry fee. Entries will be limited to two in the classifications of painting, graphic arts, collage, and wall mosaics. Both may be in the same medium. In addition, two works in sculpture may be submitted, no sculpture to exceed 100 pounds.

The happiest family on Panetta Road this week are the Clyde Lucases who are proud owners of a male Rottweiler. This is a breed of dog developed in the South of Germany, near the village of Rottweil, from descendants of the camp dogs which Roman armies used to herd their cattle and sheep in the conquest of Southern Germany 1900 years ago.

For some time the Lucases had hoped to find a mate for their "Nick" for show as well as breeding. Last week they obtained a beautiful female from Dortmund, Germany. "Circe" who does not understand English was fed and watered after her long flight and put in a pen. The next morning they discovered she had dug under the fence and disappeared. A frantic search was made of the Valley, with friends alerted in all districts. A day later Mary Lucas could hardly believe her eyes when the dog returned about 6 a.m. to the spot where she had been fed only once. The family send a sincere "thank you" to the many people who assisted with the intensive hunt for the newest member of their family.

A St. Patrick's Day motif was used at the Benefit Bridge and Canasta Party sponsored last week by the Guild of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel. Mrs. George Clifford greeted guests at her home on Rancho Road assisted by Mrs. Karl Kunz. A first in bridge was awarded to Mrs. Carl Waggoner and second to Mrs. Charles Hunt. Winning the honors among the canasta players was Mrs. Jenny Clark. Three tables of bridge and two of canasta enjoyed the afternoon of cards and the coffee and dessert which was a delicious pie... tinted green!

Leslie Joanne is the name chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bash for their daughter who arrived recently at the Community Hospital. The baby girl and her parents make their home at 25 River Road.

The mothers of the Cooperative Nursery School met Tuesday evening in the Fellowship Hall to view a film, "Fears of Children," as part of the unit which they are completing dealing with social and emotional development of children. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Michael Joyet assisted by Mrs. Roy Kaminske. Three new

Annual Girl Scout cookie sale now under way

The Kick-off date for the Montetey Bay Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sale was last Saturday. In addition to the usual mint, creme-filled sandwich and frosted shortbread cookies, previously sold by the girls, a peanut butter sandwich cookie is also included in this year's two week sale.

The annual cookie sale has a two-fold purpose: To help Girl Scouts plan and carry out a project which will give them experience in meeting the public in a courteous and business-like manner, and also to give girls the opportunity to be of service to their council in raising funds for a purpose which will benefit all Girl Scouts in the area.

Cookie sale chairman for the Carmel Valley area is Olga Lundblad.

mothers were welcomed which once again fills the enrollment to its capacity of 25 students. New members include Mrs. Cal Garner and 2-1/2 year old son, Brooks, Mrs. Paul Emerson and daughter, Margaret 4, and Mrs. Roger Winslow and three year old son, Kerry.

Word has been received that a former Valleyite, Jess Vincent, suffered a heart attack last week and is in the hospital in Sacramento. His wife, Mildred, notified friends that he was to be hospitalized 3 weeks and had been advised not to return to work for a month. A card during his convalescence would be appreciated. Get well greetings may be addressed to him at 5300, 59th Street, Sacramento, California (95820).

'Magnificent Men'

A wild movie that flies high in spite of improbable casting

By DON MINOR

Magnificent — hmph! It'll never get off the ground. Not with that big international grab-bag of a cast. Stuart Whitman, good for Westerns, maybe. Sarah Miles, —an English coquette can be as cloying as any other. Alberto Sordi —funny in Italian films, but what happens to all that Italian bezazz without an Italian director? Robert Morley —he can steal any scene, but can he hold up a whole picture? Terry Thomas —the producer knows, and we know, that he would be funny in a documentary on funeral practices. Gert Frobe — even a German can't bring order out of this kind of chaos. Jean Pierre Cassal —about as much help as DeGaulle, probably. Ujjiro Ishihara — obviously thrown in for purposes of trans-Pacific integration. No, they'll never get together. Look at the trouble they have agreeing on the time of day up at the United Nations. Besides, this is another monster comedy spectacular, patterned after 'Mad' world, freighted with expensive production, saddled with an inane story and is so furiously hard working in pursuit of laughs that it completely exhausts the viewer. A bore within ten minutes and a hundred and twenty or so to follow.

What's that you say? It is off the ground? It is flying grandly? The entire crew is meshing to perfection? The story is light-some, the dialogue winged, the direction airborne? Mon dieu, it is true! The whole show is defying the law of theatrical gravity. Look at Morley sailing along—a veritable comic blimp. And listen to that infallibly dextrous delivery of his as he enunciates his intention of underwriting the glorious race across the Channel. Sarah Miles, as his daughter, is provocative, isn't she, especially as a foil for the handsome Whitman (now there is an eminent American name) who is also a pretty good actor, by George. There is Terry Thomas, the unreconstructed dastard, plotting to win, however foul the method. Bug off, Thomas, you and your man Eris Sykes, before I die of laughter. Never mind, Terry, I'm dying anyway at the hands of that Hun, Frobe. Ach Gert, my side! Have you no mercy, you Boche? And Signor Sordi, must you Italians and the Germans always work together? You chaps are devastating you know. The same goes for you, Ishihara. By the way, what is that name? Nipponese Irish? It might as well be, the way the Alliance is operating here. No I shouldn't say that Jean Pierre is in the show, as well as all those marvellous Britons. Their portrayals are enough to make Anglophiles of us all, and one, who doesn't portray anything but makes a brilliant contribution, is the eminent English artist, Ronald Searle. His drawings for the credits are almost justification for the whole production. I should say, to all aloft, good show chaps. And equal congratulations for all the ground crew. Stan Margullies, the producer, Jack Davies and Ken Annakin, the writers, and Ken Annakin again as the director of the shebang. The sets, costumes, and all, are superbly set out in DeLuxe color. The Todd-AO wide-screen photography proves to be magnificently suited to the spectacle of a fleet of ancient aeroplanes lumbering over the English and French countryside. Finally, a special floral tribute should be placed around the neck of all those men, not listed in the credits, who researched and produced (not to say piloted) those fantastic and beautiful old flying machines. A magnificent effort fellows!

'Mr. Roberts' opens at Studio Theatre

"Mr. Roberts," a funny, but sad play about the wartime Navy opened Friday night at the Studio Theatre in Carmel. The play will be reviewed in next week's issue of the Outlook.

"Mr. Roberts" is a play with much humor...a saga of a group of American sailors aboard a cargo vessel which never becomes involved in any action. The captain is a man who makes their lives a living hell with unbelievably ridiculous regulations and restrictions.

Mr. Roberts is a young man of sensitivity and idealism. He is a kind of hero to the rest of the men. In the midst of all this there are scenes such as the night the doc got drunk on "Jungle Juice," the day someone threw the captain's beloved palm tree overboard.

Michael Keller directs the play with Ruth Jordan Allan as set designer.

Dinner is served at the Studio Theatre from 6:30 to 7:30 with the performance beginning at 8:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

Kitemakers work feverish annual Carmel Kite Fest

The March Wind doth blow...and blow... and blow...to the delight of kite flyers. Each year since 1930, the annual Carmel Kite Festival has been a spring event. This year, barring postponement from inclement weather, the contest will be held on Saturday, at the Carmel Middle School Athletic Fields, beginning at 1:30.

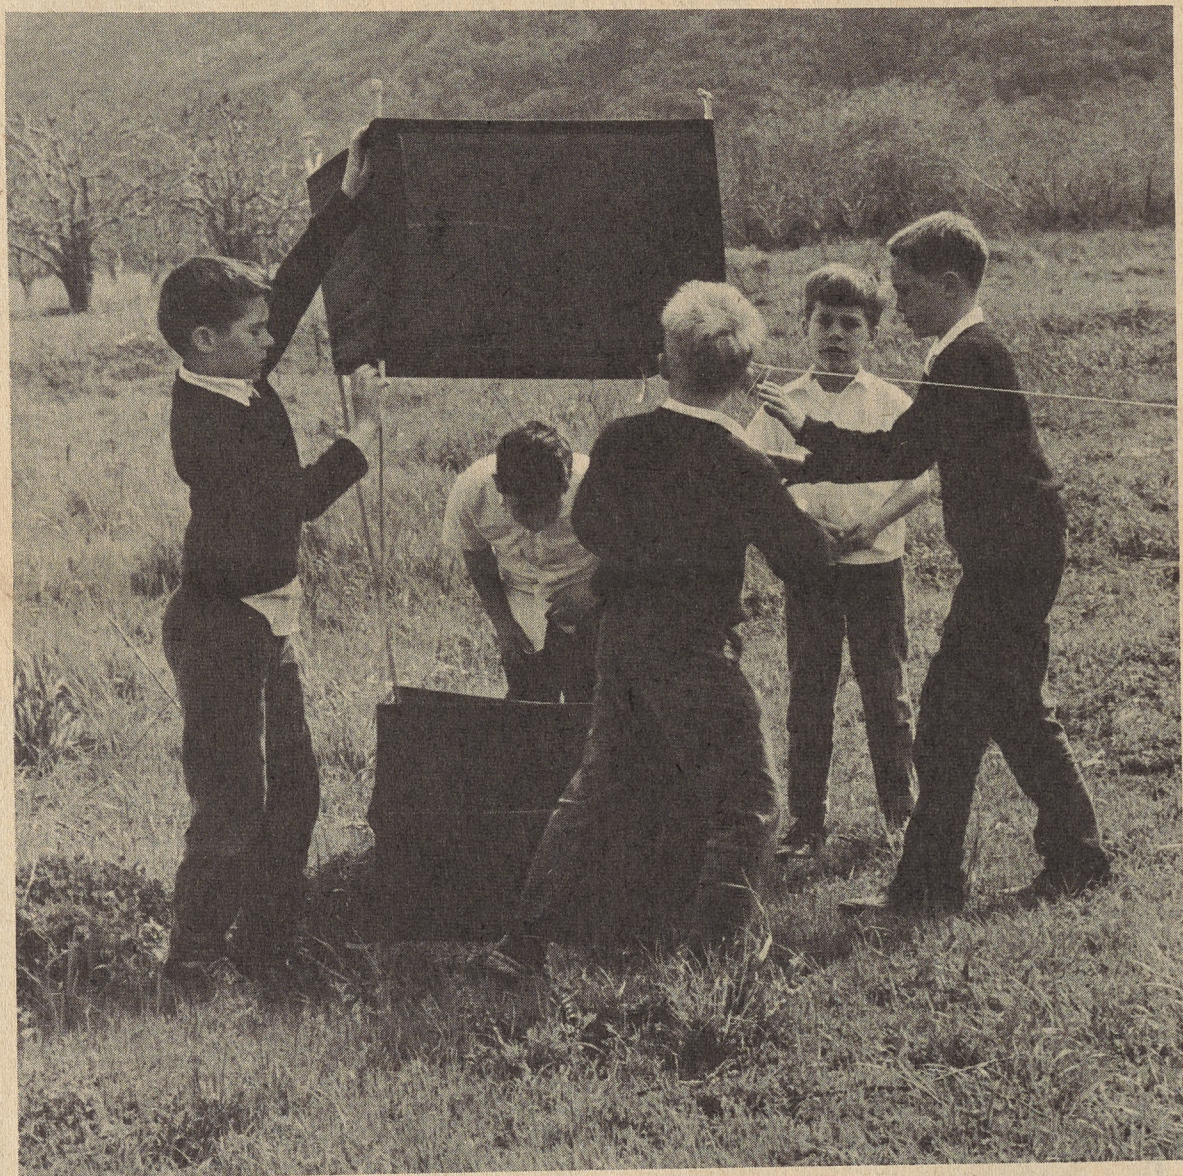

The Festival was started by Rev. Willis White and continued for many years by Ernest Calley. Calley was a shop teacher at Sunset School and his students became experts in the art of making championship kites.

Old timers remember the days when practically every kid in Carmel made a kite. Then they'd all climb aboard the fire trucks and parade up and down Ocean Avenue prior to the competition. Calley continued to direct the festival for several years after he retired from teaching and in the mid-fifties the School District Recreation Department took it over. The Carmel Lions Club and CUSD are present co-sponsors of the event.

Kites entered in the Festival must be home

ALL SAINTS Day School of Carmel Valley Road started the kite season off with a preliminary contest last week. The youngsters had a tough time getting the huge six foot box kite up, but it flew magnificently until the string broke and it plunged to earth. Getting the big blue kite ready for flight are (left to right) John Lloyd, Daniel Stone, Todd Roberts, the owner, Tom Hill and Jeff Green.

Orin T. Howard will lead lecture series on Mexico

A special seminar for persons interested in learning more about Mexico will be presented at Monterey Peninsula College beginning March 29. "Culturas de Mexico - 2000 B.C. to 2000 A.D." is designed for "old hands" as well as persons who have never visited the country.

Orin T. Howard of Santa Cruz will lead the series. Howard first visited Mexico in 1932 and has spent nearly a year in Southern Mexico during the past five years. He and his wife visited areas not usually reached by tourists, or even by most Mexicans. They traveled through Chiapas and Oaxaca by jeep, small plane and on foot.

Each seminar of "survey and speculation" will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the MPC library lecture hall. Those interested should register in advance. The series will cost $2 and checks may be paid payable to "Culturas de Mexico" and mailed to the office of the evening school dean.

On March 29, the topic will be "Who ARE the Mexicans?" and will deal with the origin and distribution of ethnic groups within the country such as Toltecs, Zapotecs, Mixtecs, Olmecs, and "Aztecs."

The April 5 session will cover the geography of Mexico and will be illustrated with slides.

The people of Mexico, their crafts, arts, languages, government, and religion will be the topic for April 12.

The April 19 session will offer information on a trip to Mexico. This discussion will cover current costs, where to go, customs regulations, clothes, water, shots, food, transportation, currency exchange, etc.

Answering readers questions

By Belva Sanford, F.A.I.D.

QUESTION: How high should pictures be hung? I have heard that it should be eye level.

ANSWER: Eye level may be a good height, but only when one is seated, as that is when one is more apt to look at pictures. It is more important to have pictures belong to the furniture under the picture, which makes it part of the decorative arrangement. This will be lower than many people hang them, but you soon find that the lower level is much more pleasing. This could be 2 inches above a mantle, 3 to 10 inches above a table or chest. If greater height is desired, hang 2 or 3 pictures above each other, with only 1 to 2 inches between them. Groupings should be hung so that they form a pleasing overall unit.

QUESTION: What should I consider when hanging a mirror?

ANSWER: Mirrors naturally should be hung low enough so that a person of average height can easily look into the upper half of the mirror. They should reflect a pleasing view either of the room or of the outdoors. Mirrors are also a help in reflecting light in a dark area. If more width is required for the design of the wall, a pair of sconces or pictures may be hung on either side of the mirror.

Mrs. S. N. Trevino was honored with a coffee Wednesday morning to give her an opportunity to meet some of her new neighbors on Lower Circle. Co-hostesses for the gathering were her daughters, Mrs. Margaret Bennett and Mrs. Chip Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Trevino completed their final assignment for the State Department in Lima, Peru in the fall. They purchased a home at 51 Lower Circle and plan to divide their time between the Valley and Maine. Welcoming Mrs. Trevino and her houseguest, Miss Esther Trevino, were Mrs. Andrew Nottenkamper, Mrs. Gregg Scherman, Mrs. John Woods, Mrs. Mable Love, Mrs. Harry Bixby, Mrs. Fred Boehme, Mrs. Michael Carter, and Mrs. Kenneth McLinn.

Welcome home to Valleyites who have been hospitalized: Les Hicks of Holman Road, Joe Branco of Lower Circle, and Mrs. John (Graeme) Harrison who made a miraculous recovery from major surgery and is recuperating at the Carmel Valley Inn. More get well wishes to Mrs. Guy (Nina) Freeman of Village Drive who is a patient at the Community Hospital where she is recovering from further surgery on her broken hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Yeisley of Paso Hondo have rented their home to Mr. and Mrs. David Ledford and moved to Seattle, Washington.

Nice things should happen to nice people like former Valleyite, Tom Oliver who last week was named manager of the Beach Club at Pebble Beach. Tom, who studied hotel management at Westminster College in his native England made many Valley friends during the four years spent as manager at the Carmel Valley Inn. With Margaret and their two sons, he will continue to make his home at 5th and Guadalupe in Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wall have sold their home in Robinson Canyon and are currently living at the Adobe Oaks Motel until their new home under construction on an adjoining lot purchased from Del Monte Properties can be completed. The new family occupying the former Wall residence are Lt. and Mrs. Daniel C. Brady and three children. Now assigned to the Naval Air Facilities in Monterey, Lt. Brady was formerly stationed in New Jersey. We would like to add a warm Valley welcome to the Wall's daughter and family who moved to the Valley recently from Whittier. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kilkovac and three children

Scott, 2, Sandra 4, and Steven 11, are living in Hitchcock Canyon. Their temporary home is located near a lot on which Audrey and Milton plan to build their new home as soon as the land is cleared.

A great commotion among the feathered and furry inhabitants of the J.L. May menage on Panetta Road last week was thought to have been a mountain lion. The invasion took place in the early Sunday morning hours. Traced to the river, the tracks clearly matched those of the large cats seen occasionally in the Valley but seldom on this side of the river. A note of caution to new residents with small family pets: it was just two years ago that a lion measuring 6'6" and weighing 130 lbs. was killed at Sycamore Farm located at the foot of the Grade Road.

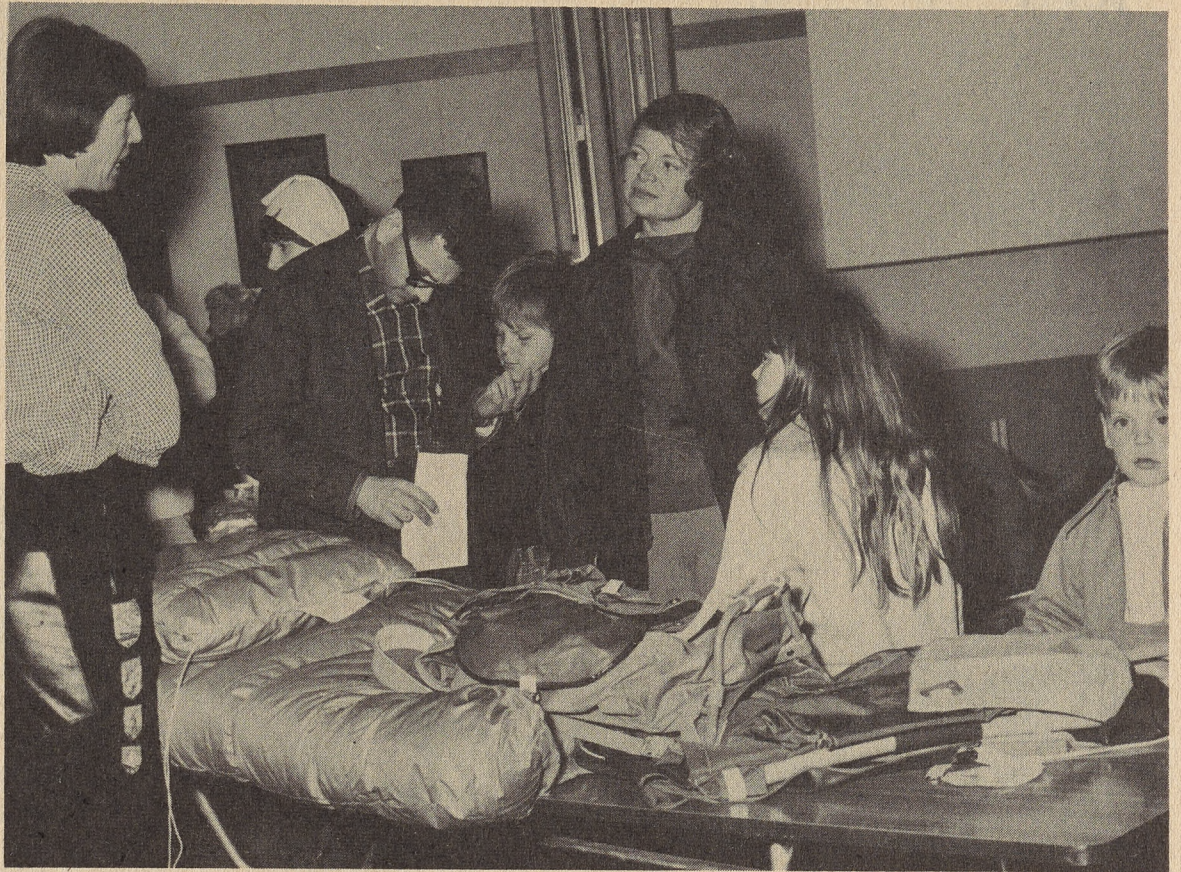

A Valley welcome to Bea Gracey, the latest member of Dr. Van Horn's office to make the Valley her permanent residence. Bea who has been living in Carmel will now make her home on West Carmel Valley Road.

Beginning March 15, the Valley Bridge Club moved from the Rancho del Monte Resort to the Carmel Valley Community Center and will continue to hold their weekly games there each Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. Winners of the recent Monthly Masterpoint Tournament were: NORTH-SOUTH, 1st place, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Gravelle; 2nd place, Mrs. Mary Drobek and Mrs. Mary Angier. Winners of EAST-WEST, 1st place was awarded to Mrs. G.E. Richardson and Mrs. R.J. Bell, 2nd place honors went to Mrs. Irene Baldwin and Peter Hanson. Results of the following week's games were 1st place, Mrs. Irene Baldwin and R. Rolkvam; 2nd place, Mrs. Vivian Palmer and Mrs. Martha Vail; 3rd place Mrs. E.W. Gravelle and John Van Laanen.

Nicholas Edward Klein was two last week...two months! The third son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Klein weighed 7 lbs. 13 oz. when he arrived January 16 at the Community Hospital. He joins brothers Johnny and Peter at the family home on West Carmel Valley Road.

Anniversary congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Danielson. Milda and Boyd who make their home on River Road were married 31 years ago in Kansas.

Mrs. Dick Miller Sr., Mrs. Loren Palmeton, and Mrs. Ray

CORKY MATTHEWS (Left) of Carmel Valley, helped answer questions on camping equipment at the recent Sierra Club Outing Exhibit at Carmel High School. The Matthews, adults and children, are ardent camper and back packers. Corky is also a member of the Sierra Club executive committee and edits "The Ventana," club bulletin. Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Figen of Carmel with their children, Peter, Ann and Bill, were among the 1000 persons who at-

REMINISCENT OF A ROMAN bacchanal, Carmel High Latin students recline, awaiting service from their slaves. Advanced students are traditionally the "masters" with their first year Latin classmates waiting on them and obeying every command. In the best Roman tradition the toga-clad masters do their best to make the evening miserable for the slaves who must perform such stunts as pushing peanuts along the floor with their noses.

Reports of the feast, honoring Augustus and Octavia, seemed too prosaic to picture in the mundane surroundings of school, so we took the liberty of moving the celebrants to a grassy slope overlooking Carmel Valley. (Left to right)

Jane Harness, Donna Condren, Christine Halle, Julie Fehring, Robert Kutschbach and Jim Buzaid.

A feast of chicken and artichokes was enjoyed by the Romans at their annual banquet which is held as close to the Ides of March as possible. The slaves climaxed the dinner by serving punch, simulating wine, in traditional Roman style.

Mrs. Mira Jordan, Latin teacher, is the sponsor of the club. Officers are Geoff Cocks, president, Hazel Jacoby, vice president, and Kyra Idol, secretary.

Traditional 90" Sofa, executed in the Country French manner by Heritage, to correlate with and complement the Grand Tour Collection of fine continental design themes. Richly carved and beautifully tufted, this fine piece of upholstery typifies the unique craftsmanship and quality available from Heritage. Anthony Petti also invites you to discover "The Delights of Color" as featured in the March issue of "House & Garden."

Red Cross drive reaches halfway mark

The Red Cross has announced that their fund drive has reached the halfway mark and they have received over half of their goal of $28,796. To date over $16,000 has been raised by volunteer workers on the Peninsula.

Another announcement from Carmel Red Cross headquarters requests volunteers to help make canvas ditty bags for troops in Vietnam. The bags are shipped flat and then filled over there with Red Cross "comfort" supplies for hospital patients. The units have been asked to supply 250 of these bags and anyone wishing to help make them may call Mrs. H.J. Danelz at 624-6001 or at Carmel Red Cross headquarters.

Boy Scout Troop 127 hiked to snow topped Chews Ridge

By BY CORDREY
Second Class Scout

Eight boys and Scoutmaster Robert Ray went on a snow camp atop Chews Ridge on Saturday, March 5.

We met at the Carmel Valley Community Center that morning at 7:30 a.m. The boys loaded their packs into the cars driven by Robert Ray and Richard Drunner. We drove within a mile and a half of our destination; then the road got too slick and we had to put chains on the cars.

We then drove to White Oaks Camp. Then we unloaded our packs and walked the mile and a half to Chews Ridge. It was uphill all the way!

When we arrived there we set about setting up our camps and building fires to cook our lunches.

After camp was set up the snowballs started flying thick and fast. A few boys brought inner tubes along for sliding. This provided fun for quite a while also!

After we cooked dinner that evening a few of the boys walked up to the Chews Ridge lookout to see the view which is quite good.

That night most of us slept pretty well; it wasn't very cold but the wind blew quite hard during the night.

Sunday morning it wasn't too cold but the wind was still blowing. We cooked breakfast and then played in the snow or worked on advancement skills.

At about noon we broke camp and put our packs together for the hike homeward. We hiked back to White Oaks Camp, loaded our gear into the cars and

IT WAS UPHILL all the way... in the snow. Boy Scouts from Valley Troup 127 hiked one and a half miles from where they headed for home. We arrived home at about 3:30 p.m.

The scouts attending were:

left the car to the top of Chews Ridge. They pitched a snow camp and stayed overnight. Needless to say, the snowballs

AFTER A ROLLYING over-night camp trip to the snow, the Boy Scouts repacked their gear and prepared for the one and a half mile hike back to the cars at White Oaks camp. The trip back was easier than the approach however, because it

Fish and Game Dept. announces regulations for abalone season

The sportfishing season for abalones opened March 16, and will run through January 14.

Bag limit is five abalones in combination of all species and the minimum size limits, measured in greatest shell diameter, are seven inches for red abalone, six and a quarter inches for green abalone, six inches for pink abalone, five inches for black abalone, and six inches for all other species of abalone.

The Department of Fish and game lists several regulations abalone fishermen should be familiar with before braving the briny in search of this delicious mollusk.

Fishing hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset.

Every person while taking abalones shall carry a device which is capable of measuring accurately the size of the abalones taken.

Each abalone which has been detached but is not being retained must be replaced immediately, by hand, with the shell outward, to the same surface of the rock occupied before detachment.

Legal-size abalones must be brought ashore above the high water mark attached to their shells and alive. Abalones not in the shell may not be transported or possessed except when being prepared for immediate consumption.

Date set for annual Adobe

House Tour in Monterey

"Under Three Flags," will be the theme of this year's annual Adobe House Tour. Influences and life under the Spanish, Mexican and American flags will be depicted in the event. The Monterey History and Art Association sponsors the tour of the historic adobes which will take place on Saturday, April 30, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

From 10 until noon, coffee will be served at the Association's headquarters in the Casa Serrano and a tea is scheduled there from 2 until 6 p.m.

The Paisano Picnic, a highlight of last year, will be repeated in the Memory Garden from noon until 2 p.m. The coffee and the tea are included in the tour price, but the luncheon is an additional $1.50.

Transportation to and from the adobes is furnished by the Monterey History and Art Association.

Tickets for the tour which run $3.50 per person ($1.50 for uniformed military and students) will be on sale at each adobe the day of the tour and at La Casa Serrano prior to April 30.

Circle K Club sponsors Trike Race at MPC

The Circle K Club of Monterey Peninsula College is having a tricycle race on Friday, March 25, in front of the Administration Building. Proceeds from the entry fees will benefit Goodwill Industries, according to Stephen Byers.

The Circle K Club's challenge has been accepted by Phi Sigma Chi, the other campus men's service organization. It is estimated that about 50 persons will compete in the various heats.

The Clubs would like the loan or donation of as many tri-cycles as possible for the event. Those that are donated will be given to children of the community who have no trikes. Borrowed ones will be returned. Call 372-8238 if you have a "vehicle" available for the clubs to use.

Palo Colorado parents protest possible closing of one-room coast school

Parents of children attending Palo Colorado School recently sent a letter to Medill Bair requesting aid in keeping the one-room school open, even if by some unfortunate occurrence, the override tax did not pass.

In stories of budget cuts in case of failure of the override tax, the closing of Palo Colorado to shave $1,000 off the CUSD budget has been often mentioned.

All parents signed the letter which stated nine separate advantages in maintaining the school. Some parents said that recent remarks made by members of the school board indicated that they thought Palo Colorado parents didn't really care whether the school was kept open or not.

This impression is certainly rectified in the current open letter, the contents of which are summarized below.

The parents desire the development of their children in the non-graded format of Palo Colorado, where each child learns at his speed, regardless of age.

Parents feel that the school is a model school known throughout the country and to close it would be a detriment to the school district.

The fact that parents from all over the CUSD elect to drive their children to this school is indicative of their regard.

Mrs. Bottaro is regarded as a superlative teacher and the setting of the school offers a unique educational experience for children attending, according to the parents' letter.

To bus small children to Carmel would invoke a hardship on them and to bus them further down the coast to Captain Cooper would be a further burden on the CUSD bus system.

OOPS! We're Sorry

Further investigation has shown that the youth fight reported last week in the Sheriff's Blotter did not originate at the Carmel Youth Center.

Ted Jameson will sing the tenor solo part in Handel's "Messiah," to be presented April 9 at the Navy Postgraduate School, not Charles Stone as reported last week.
